

Shelley Campbell

Retired Public Relations Professional

Combining a lifelong passion for classical music with her public relations background, Shelley Campbell serves the DuPage Symphony Orchestra board of directors as chair of the development and marketing committee. Shelley served as Public Relations Specialist at the West Chicago Public Library District, promoting library services to underserved citizens and providing integral support to the development of the library's strategic planning process for 2012-17. She was previously employed for over 20 years by Mobil Oil Corporation's North American Marketing Division, serving as Assistant Manager of Plant Operations for 10 of those years. Having received a coveted Marketing Achievement Award for her work in inventory management, she then spent a year on special assignment to the International Division conducting inventory management seminars in Australia and South America.

Shelley holds an MBA in Marketing and Operations Management from Lewis University, and a B.S. in Organizational Behavior from National-Louis University. She has studied classical piano since she was 5 (which she says is a long time) and studied violin through high school where she served as concert master and played in regional festival orchestras, winning a scholarship to Illinois Wesleyan summer music camp. She especially enjoys accompanying her daughter, who plays cello with the DSO.
